STU Undergraduate Program for English Majors

Program Objectives

STU Undergraduate Program for English Majors aims to train and cultivate whole-person undergraduates with global vision, craftsmanship spirit, innovation and entrepreneurship ability, professional integrity, and scientific and socio-scientific literacy based on socialist core values. It offers content-based courses related to English language learning, linguistics and literature in English, translation and intercultural studies. The curriculum is designed to help students develop practical skills of the English language besides guiding them to study and create knowledge by focusing on what to learn, how to learn as well as when, where and how to apply the acquired knowledge and skills in problem solving tasks. English will be taught and studied both as a language tool and as an academic discipline.

The English majors will work to achieve:

1. gain mastery over the English language orally and in writing;
2. complete a liberal education with an emphasis on the development of communicative, analytic and critical writing and translation skills;
3. learn how to gather, analyze, evaluate, synthesize and articulate information in both oral and written forms;
4. develop multiple perspectives on social life and cultural values by learning and studying knowledge in fields including but not limited to linguistics, literature, translation and culture;
5. foster an awareness of world culture and cultural trends in globalization;
6. cultivate digital literacy and master a second foreign language.
